The Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts

with our "Green Convention" Award. The Episcopal Diocese's Taskforce on Faith and the Environment created an initiative to make the Diocese's 2005 annual convention environmentally responsible. Among the measures taken, the Episcopal Diocese teamed up with Mass Energy to purchase clean, renewable energy for the convention. This carbon offset program helped to neutralize the environmental impact of the convention's electrical usage. Some of the other measures: The Diocese reduced its paper use by providing information to attendees electronically when possible. The Diocese placed extra recycling bins throughout convention space and hotel. "Green" drink stations were set up, using glasses, mugs, and water pitchers. Thank you for setting a powerful example of environmental stewardship for the community of faith.
